Product Description

Waste plastic single screw extruder PA PC pellet recycling pelletizing machine

The motor and gearbox are linked by a coupling for direct transmission, ensuring high transmission efficiency. This setup lowers energy consumption and results in a more compact equipment design.

Cooling for the barrel can be achieved through either a fan or a circulating soft water system. It is outfitted with an imported temperature control system and offers PID parameter setting functionality for precise temperature control.

Featuring a vacuum exhaust port and a screw exhaust structure, the barrel enhances exhaust and devolatilization functions compared to traditional single-screw extruders. This design amplifies the capabilities and potential applications of the single-screw extruder.
